

I WILL NOT

• Kiss Scott
Federman

By Devin Bunje & Nick Stanton

"What if you found out you were destined to save the world? But first, you had to do all the things you were ever afraid to do."

The Big Idea

On New Year's Eve, 14-year-old HAILEY BANKS decides to start a list of all the big things she wants to do to in the upcoming year. But the real-world challenges she gives herself (from "belly flop off the high dive" to "train a cat to play piano") suddenly have HUGE stakes when a crazed Professor arrives from the future with the already-written list and tells Hailey the fate of the world depends on her completing every item, including the last one... kissing her best friend SCOTT FEDERMAN.

The Backstory

HAILEY and SCOTT have been best friends since the age of two, having grown up next door to each other in the quiet beach community of Oceanside, California. They went to daycare together, they took baths together, and they both lost their front teeth in the same trampoline accident at age six. Today, they play pranks and tease each other on a daily basis, and have a comfort and familiarity that only lifelong friends can have. Hailey has always had big dreams, but is more of a "thinker" than a "do-er." Scott, on the other hand, is the kind of friend who jumps first and asks questions later, if ever at all – which is why Hailey has always counted on him to pull her out of her shell.

But this year is going to be different for Hailey! On New Year's Eve, she resolves to write down a list of all the big (and medium and small) things she wants to do in the upcoming year. Scott loves the idea, but is skeptical that Hailey will actually follow through with them. He reminds her of the Vision Board that Hailey made last year, which features a photo collage of dozens of things Hailey chickened out of: starting her own YouTube channel, a month-long beet juice cleanse, screaming a song request at Ed Sheeran, etc. But Hailey insists she's serious this time! She even excuses herself from watching the ball drop at midnight to go start on her list upstairs.

When Hailey gets to her room and begins to write her list in a notebook, however, her bedroom shakes wildly and a crazed PROFESSOR (think a female version of Rick from Rick & Morty) bursts out of her closet holding an already completed version of the very list that Hailey just started! The Professor says she's been sent from the future to tell Hailey she's destined to one day save the world! But it's all dependent on Hailey having the craziest year of her life and completing all 365 items on this list. Hailey can't believe the Professor really is from the future. But the Professor says can prove it! She turns on the live Times Square ball drop on TV and says that in 5 seconds a bird will hit Ryan Seacrest in the face. As if on queue, a pigeon smacks into Ryan Seacrest's face and he topples backwards off the stage. Hailey's jaw drops.

She quickly takes the already-written notebook from the Professor and sees that the list is filled with a lot of fun stuff ("Win a chili cook-off," "Learn to do The Floss," "Try Sumo Wrestling," etc.), until she gets to #337... "Kiss Scott Federman." Hailey is sure there must be some mistake – she can't kiss Scott! He's her best friend, it would be super weird! He wears the same jeans for a month straight. He claims the best song ever written is "Despacito." He inexplicably calls potato chips "crispy dippers!" Plus he's ...Scott. She can't kiss him to save the world! The Professor says she must! She then begins to explain that Hailey is destined for greatness, but it all starts with her completing this list, which leads to the creation of Project X, which is— THWUNK! The room suddenly shakes again and the Professor is sucked back into the time portal, leaving Hailey standing there in shock.

Just then, Scott enters the room. "Hey, did you see that bird hit Ryan Seacrest in the face!? Also, check it out, I made myself duck lips using crispy dippers!" Hailey pulls Scott into her room, then takes a deep breath and explains to him what just happened – a Professor from the future traveled through an interdimensional wormhole and told her that the fate of the world rests on her shoulders, but first she has to do all of the crazy things on her list. After a beat, Scott says this all makes total sense. He once read a comic book about how humans would one day evolve into hyper-intelligent time-travelling lizard people, so this kinda supports that theory. Minus the lizards. Scott says he is 100% on board with helping Hailey complete every item on The List (but only because she doesn't mention the kiss).

Unfortunately, the two soon realize that the completed list was sucked back into the future along with the Professor. Hailey isn't sure how she's going to complete the list without having the list, when she remembers the futuristic smartphone the Professor gave her before she disappeared. Hailey turns on the phone to discover it features a digital copy of the completed list and an artificially-intelligent operating system that goes by the name BETA. And while Beta isn't the biggest fan of annoyingly-fallible humans (particularly Scott), he was brought back from the future to help Hailey complete The List by calculating the optimal order in which to complete each item.

With Scott and Beta's help, Hailey then sets out to conquer every item on The List, which features random challenges like "Win a Dog Show," "Catch a Foul Ball," and "Learn to Speak Tagalog." And while the real-world challenges may seem trivial on their face, they all have HUGE stakes for the future (a la Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure).

As if that wasn't difficult enough, the friends must also confront the sabotaging efforts of CHAOS BOTS – small robots, sent from the future to stop Hailey from completing her list. Along the way, Hailey will be pushed out of her comfort zone and discover the greatness inside her as she systematically conquers her greatest fears, including her biggest one... confronting her ever-growing feelings toward her best friend (a la Jim & Pam from season one of The Office).

Style & Tone

I Will Not Kiss Scott Federman is a fast-paced, comedy-first, animated series with heart – think Rick & Morty meets Phineas & Ferb with a dash of Kim Possible thrown in. And while the series will feature apocalyptic stakes and the ever-present threat of time-travelling Chaos Bots, each episode will strive to tell grounded, relatable stories about two best friends caught up in extraordinary circumstances.

The visual style and tone of the show will follow two main guidelines: 1) These are REALISTIC CHARACTERS in extraordinary circumstances (as opposed to the other way around). Some great examples of this are Futurama and Scott Pilgrim vs. the World. And 2) The world is a BRIGHT AND POSITIVE PLACE, with a future worth fighting for. While dark or intense storytelling can be effective, we want everything in our series to invoke a bright and positive reaction from our audience. We feel strongly that a deep connection to likable and relatable characters in an aspirational world will keep our viewers coming back for more. In TVA terms, think more Duck Tales and less Darkwing Duck.

Hailey and Scott live next door to each other in the quiet beach community of Oceanside, California. Their modest suburban houses are connected by a pepper tree, which connects their windows. It's a middle-class neighborhood, but Hailey's roof does feature a stunning view of the ocean.

In keeping with our theme, Oceanside will be portrayed as a bright, positive place. Hailey's world is a world (and a future) worth fighting for! The town has a "beachy" SoCal vibe, and features a charming main street and a semi-popular beach boardwalk/amusement park where Hailey always bumps into someone she knows.

Why Oceanside? Mostly because it's a real, middle class beach town that offers a variety of "looks" and locales, but ALSO because we (the writers) grew up in small towns with long winters and always loved watching shows like Saved by the Bell, which were set by the beach. The idea of a town/school by the beach automatically added a "cool" factor to the world. Because Hailey and Scott are friends who could become more than friends, we also want a lot of our set pieces and locales to have a "romantic" feel – enforced by lighting and design – to make it seem almost as though the universe is pushing these two characters together.

Main Characters

Hailey

When we first meet Hailey, she's a normal 14-year-old girl who has big dreams but often lacks the confidence to follow through with them. She is a "builder" and a "maker" who is equal parts resourceful and creative. She spends nearly all of her free time with her best friend Scott. The two have been inseparable since they were both in diapers. Hailey is smart and hugely capable, but truth be told, she is a natural introvert who would prefer jumping out of a plane on Fortnite than going skydiving in real life (List Item #114). She can be awkward and sometimes unsure of herself, but after Hailey learns that she's destined to one day save the world, she'll start to discover a grit, determination, and bravery inside her that she never knew existed. Luckily, Hailey will have her best friend Scott helping her every step along the way. At least until he starts dating the most popular girl in school, Kristine.

CHARACTER REFERENCES: Maya Ishii-Peters (Pen15), Lizzie McGuire (Lizzie McGuire), Dr. Elliot Reid (Scrubs).

Scott

Scott has been Hailey's neighbor and best friend since they were old enough to drool. An excitable and outgoing 14-year-old, Scott is always up for anything, which is a big help when the fate of the world depends on your best friend completing her "to do" list. Scott is the only person Hailey trusts with the info she learned from the Professor because he's super loyal, fearless, and doesn't question the weirdness of what's going on – he believes virtually everything he reads, including a comic book suggesting the world will soon be ruled by time-traveling lizard-people. He's also a pretty amazing ultimate frisbee player. Scott's big flaw is that he has a serious case of FOMO, and hates to be left out of anything – even if Hailey is just going to get her cat's teeth cleaned, Scott wants to be there. Scott is the only son of a Korean "Tiger Mom" and a workaholic dad who spend all their time working as owner-operators of Oceanside's only Shakey's Pizza Parlor. They put their first-born son on a pedestal and are hardly ever home, so Scott is free to do pretty much whatever he wants.

Hailey + Scott

Hailey and Scott's relationship is comfortable, sincere, co-dependent, evolving, and complicated. At the beginning of our series, the two are inseparable friends who spend all their time together and have a comfort and familiarity that far exceeds their relationships to even their own families.

Even though they're very different people, they're both good-hearted people who love to have fun and help others in need. They're also super competitive at everything from charades to Rock Band.

Their differences also fit together nicely. Scott is naturally outgoing, whereas Hailey is more of an introvert. Hailey tends to overthink every decision, whereas Scott rarely thinks through anything. Hailey is deliberate and even-keel during stressful situations, while Scott's emotions can swing wildly from second to second. Instead of pushing their relationship apart, however, these differences actually make it stronger. Scott isn't afraid to push Hailey out of her comfort zone, which is something she actually wants and needs. Meanwhile, Hailey is always there to keep an eye on Scott and make sure he doesn't accidentally steer his jetski into a riptide (which has happened more than once).

Truthfully, the only thing that could cause a rift in Hailey and Scott's relationship is the dreaded "F" word – Feelings. Like most kids in our audience, Hailey and Scott are completely naïve when it comes to managing romantic feelings, especially when they start to have them for each other. These growing affections will make them irrational and jealous as things get more and more complicated. It will push them apart, then push them closer together, then destroy the friendship, before ultimately leading them back together forever. Along the way, it'll be sloppy, funny, and relatable, just like every relationship.

Other Characters

Beta

Beta is a hyper-intelligent smartphone from the future with the most advanced A.I. capabilities the present-day world has ever seen. The Professor brought Beta to Hailey with the sole mission of helping her complete The List. His features include a digital copy of the list and an advanced probability calculator (think Ziggy from Quantum Leap) to help determine the optimal order to complete the list items. Without Beta's help, it would be nearly impossible to complete all the items in time. Despite the adorably small robotic body Hailey built for him, Beta takes himself and his position very seriously. Since he was only programmed for this particular mission, however, he has a very limited knowledge of future events, which Hailey finds super annoying. Beta is unimpressed with humans in general, especially Scott, but has a soft spot in his circuitry for Hailey, since she's the one who invents his technology in the year 2043 (although neither of them knows that yet).

CHARACTER REFERENCES: Lord Nibbler (Futurama), Ziggy (Quantum Leap).

The Professor

A hare-brained, wild-eye scientist from the future, who travels back in time to warn Hailey that the fate of the world rests on her shoulders. While the Professor will only occasionally pop into episodes (after all, it takes a 12 billion joules of Hailey-tonium to even briefly open up a time portal), she is the subject of much speculation between Hailey and Scott. Is she Hailey's granddaughter? Or Hailey herself? Or a weirdo imposter who is just messing with Hailey? The real answer is none of the above, but we won't find that out until Season 3! The brief bits of information Hailey and Scott can glean from the always-frantic Professor will both help them on their journey and utterly confound them.

CHARACTER REFERENCES: Rick (Rick & Morty), Doc Brown (Back to the Future).

Hailey's Family

Hailey's Mom CYNTHIA is a kick-butt businesswoman and the breadwinner of the family who is the founder and CEO of a successful yoga apparel company. Type-A and confident, Cynthia has a hard time relating to Hailey being a natural introvert, and wants her only daughter to grab the world by the horns and tackle it to the ground like she did.

Hailey's Dad KYLE on the other hand is a fun-loving stay-at-home dad, who is currently taking a break from his family therapy practice to raise Hailey's twin baby brothers, DWAYNE and JOHNSON, who he always carries around in a double Bjorn. Like Cynthia, Kyle wants Hailey to find her inner-confidence, but takes a more "talk out your feelings" approach. When Hailey's parents start to see Hailey going to great lengths to complete her List, they naturally assume it was their awesome parenting that motivated her to finally start coming out of her shell.

REFERENCES: Rainbow Jackson (Black-ish), Phil Dunphy (Modern Family).

Kristine the Hat Queen

The most popular girl in school with an “Insta” following in the quadruple digits, Kristine Sanchez is obsessed with looking good, and has a hat for every mood. Kristine starts dating Scott early on in our first season because he’s outgoing and good-looking, even though it soon becomes obvious they aren’t right for each other. At the beginning of the series, Hailey thinks she wants to be just like Kristine, but soon realizes that there are more important things in life than swanky hats and Insta-fans.

CHARACTER REFERENCES – Cher (Clueless), Kimberly (My Best Friend’s Wedding)

Becker

Scott’s tough-as-nails younger sister who is also the go-to neighborhood source for illicit deeds and contraband. While her old-fashioned Korean mom heaps praise on her older brother for remembering to flush the toilet, Becker could score a 1580 on her PSATs and she’d ask her why she got one wrong. Luckily, Becker (short for Rebecca – a name she hates) is the master of never getting caught and couldn’t care less what others think of her. She is a wild card who can go from being your best friend to your worst enemy in seconds. Think of her as a personality mashup between Cartman from South Park and Animal from The Muppet Show.

Chaos Bots

The robotic henchmen of the future who are being sent back to Hailey's time through a hidden portal created by the mysterious Agents of Chaos. While the Chaos Bots may look unassuming (and sometimes kinda cute), DO NOT be fooled. They are evil little buggers with pointy metal teeth! Luckily, they're a lot of fun for Hailey and Scott to get rid of – throughout our series, our duo will smash 'em, impale 'em, even throw 'em a blender. The Chaos Bots are masters of disguise, and can take on many forms. But they're always relentless, with the singular goal of preventing Hailey from completing her list... although they can be distracted by almost any dance-friendly music video.

CHARACTER REFERENCES – The Minions (Despicable Me), Gremlins (Gremlins).

Some Other Questions!

What inspired the concept? We drew inspiration from classic time travel movies like Back to the Future and T2, but our biggest influence was probably Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure, which is particularly relevant because it's about two regular kids who are caught up in extraordinary circumstances with HUGE stakes placed on them passing a simple history test. It's also really funny! The list element of the show was also partly-inspired by My Name is Earl and Phineas & Ferb, which use similar devices as story-drivers.

Why do we want to tell this story? This might be the first kids series that's tackled the emotional complexities of a friendship that might become a full-blown romance. We think that will really resonate with our audience and be rich for stories.

How is Hailey supposed to save the world? Hailey doesn't know! All that she and Beta know is that after she completes The List, she will go on to create something called Project X, which has huge ramifications on the future of the planet.

What is Project X? Project X is something Hailey invents in the future that brings peace and harmony to the world! Unfortunately, Beta wasn't programmed with the knowledge of what it is, which Hailey finds super frustrating. Without spoiling too much, we think it's an environmental "game changer" that combats climate change through crowd-sourcing – the equivalent of turning everyone's iPhones into tiny carbon emission-neutralizers.

But why Hailey? This is a question the reticent Hailey will ask repeatedly. What she doesn't know is that with a little bit of confidence, she is one of the strongest, most-capable people on the planet – a fact that Scott has been trying to convince her of for years.

What is the message or theme of the show? Ultimately, we want to tell our audience that they can do big things and make a positive difference in the world.

Does "The List" need to be completed in order? No! Beta runs a trillion-trillion computations per second to calculate the optimal order of completion for Hailey (a la "Ziggy" on Quantum Leap). The order will change as circumstances warrant.

What does Beta know about the future? Not very much. While Beta is basically the future's most technologically-advanced iPhone, he was only programmed to help Hailey complete The List. We will later learn that "future Hailey" actually developed the technology that Beta was based on, but neither Hailey or Beta currently know that.

What happens if Hailey skips a list item? Every time Hailey does something that puts the completion of The List at risk, the world will experience a "Time Glitch" where the background briefly desaturates, to give a worrying glimpse of a dreary parallel version of the world on a different timeline. The glitches serve as a warning that if Hailey fails to complete The List, that world will become the permanent reality.

What does the future hold for Hailey and Scott? Hailey and Scott's future will feature the ups and downs that exist in any relationship, but that being said, Hailey and Scott DO eventually get together (yay!). BUT they have a bittersweet parting of ways after high school too pursue their very different life paths. Hailey goes to college at CalTech, whereas Scott stays local (San Diego State Ultimate Frisbee rules!). After college, Scott lands a "dream job" for what seems to be a super-cool dot-com start-up, but actually turns out to be an evil corporation hellbent on world domination (think SkyNet or Facebook). When Scott discovers this, he warns the smartest person he knows, his old friend Hailey, of their evil plans. Armed with this knowledge (and Scott's help), Hailey finishes creating Project X – an environmental "game changer" that the evil corporation sees as a threat to its plans of world domination. So, they try to stop her by sending back Chaos Bots back in time to mess with 14 year-old Hailey and change the future in their favor.

What does a typical 11-minute episode look like? While we want to avoid formulaic storytelling, we do think there are a ton of fun stories to be mined from the various List items, which can also play into Hailey & Scott's relationship. Some examples are below!

Stories

“Make a Female Friend”

When Beta tells Hailey that the next item she needs to check off her list is “Make a Female Friend,” she assumes it will be easy. But after being quickly rejected by everyone from the neighborhood dogwalker to her favorite barista, Hailey realizes making a friend other than Scott is actually really hard. Luckily, Scott has a solution – his sister Becker could really use a friend who isn’t currently on parole. Hailey reluctantly agrees to give it a shot and tries to break the ice by inviting Becker to help build a model train set, which Becker promptly blows up with some of her fireworks. The explosion is so epic, however, Becker tells Hailey she’s down to become friends after all. List item accomplished! But when Becker asks what they’re gonna blow up next, Hailey tells her she’s gonna need to take a rain check. She has homework tonight and tomorrow she’ll be busy shopping for a new pair of pumas (item #345 on The List “Get a pair of Pumas”). Hailey then ushers Becker out the door. The next morning, Hailey gets a call from Becker saying she got her a little gift... you know, since they’re friends now. “Take a look outside.” Hailey then looks out the window to see a pair of real-life Pumas pacing the yard! Hailey freaks and yells at Scott to come over and fix this. Scott tries calling animal control and learns that someone appears to have stolen the pumas from the reserve the night before. Now the authorities are looking for suspects! Hailey and Scott realize they’re all gonna get in trouble if they don’t get these wild animals back to the reserve. The two lure the pumas into a port-a-potty and, using a riding lawnmower and skateboards, carefully transport them back to the reserve. On the way, Hailey gets another call from Becker asking if she likes the shoes she left on her front porch. Turns out, the pumas escaped the reserve on their own and Becker had nothing to do with it! The shocked Hailey slams on the brakes, causing the port-a-potty to tip over. The pumas escape! Angry after being trapped in a port-a-potty for two hours, the big cats chase after Hailey and Scott, eventually cornering them against a beach cliff. With nowhere else to go and the pumas moving in on them, Hailey and Scott share a moment as they prepare for the worst. Scott: “If this is the end, I’m glad I’m with you.” As the two hold each other, suddenly, Becker appears and uses some of her fireworks to scare the pumas away and into the back of an arriving Animal Control van! Hailey thanks Becker for being a good friend, but says that maybe they shouldn’t hang out all the time. That way, when they do hang out, it’ll be more special. Becker says she reads her loud and clear. Then, as Hailey leaves, Becker smiles to Scott and says, “Did you hear that? Hailey’s totally into me... I’m gonna kiss Hailey Banks.” Off Scott’s surprised reaction, we FADE OUT.

“Win the Homecoming Crown”

We start on Beta making a startling discovery– all the makings of a human disguise in the janitor’s closet of Hailey’s school. Beta concludes a Chaos Bot must have assumed a human form to infiltrate their school! Its mission? To stop Hailey from completing her next list item: “Win the Homecoming Crown.” Hailey groans, she doesn’t want to run for Homecoming Queen at all, let alone with a humanoid Chaos Bot making it even harder. Beta tells Hailey to simply keep a lookout for any suspicious characters at school so they can shut it down. In class, Hailey volunteers to run for Homecoming Queen and it looks like she’ll be the only one running, until another hand shoots up. It belongs to Zoya, a new foreign exchange student from Canada, who speaks in an odd robotic monotone. Zoya says she will stop at nothing to win the crown and defeat Hailey. Hailey and Scott exchange a look – looks like they’ve found their Chaos Bot. Throughout the day, their suspicions are confirmed when they notice Zoya is afraid of magnets, stares straight at the wall during lunch period, and seems obsessed with beating out Hailey for the Homecoming Crown. Meanwhile, Beta sneaks into the Principal’s Office to look at the new girl’s transcript when he is suddenly thrown into a closet and the door is locked behind him! At the Homecoming Rally, Hailey gets an alert that Beta is in trouble and runs off to save him. Zoya then takes the stage for her Homecoming Queen presentation, which is a bizarre iron-fisted rant about how all students must vote for her or suffer the consequences. Meanwhile, Hailey rushes into the Principal’s Office and frees Beta from the closet. They then turn to find themselves face-to-face with Leo, the previously-inconspicuous Class Treasurer. They’re confused until Leo rips off his rubber face mask to reveal he’s actually 30 Chaos Bots jammed into a disguise! Turns out, Zoya was who she said she was all along – her behaviors were just Canadian eccentricities. As Beta and Hailey get to smashing the Chaos Bots to smithereens, we cut back to the pep rally where Scott realizes that Zoya will win the Homecoming Crown if he doesn’t do something. Unaware of Hailey’s discovery, Scott rushes the stage and tells the crowd that Zoya isn’t who she says she is – then attempts to rip off her “lame attempt at a human disguise,” only to discover it’s her real hair and face. Awkward. Just then, Hailey bursts into the gymnasium chasing the last Chaos Bot. There is an epic battle, where Hailey dodges laser blasts and tosses the Chaos Bot into the scoreboard, where it is electrocuted and explodes. After a beat, the other students applaud and the Principal congratulates Hailey on creating such an impressive stunt show for her Homecoming Queen presentation. The special effects were amazing! After the student body texts their votes in, Hailey is named Homecoming Queen, and all is well with the world. Except for the massive clean-up in the gymnasium that she and Scott have to do the next day.

“Spend ALL my Gift Cards”

Hailey is thrilled when Beta tells her the next item on the list is a fun one: “Spend all my gift cards.” Looks like it’s time for her and Scott to go on a shopping spree! The two friends have a blast spending Hailey’s surprisingly large number of old gift cards – they get temporary tattoos at the Henna Hut, get a couple “everything” smoothies at Jumbo Juice, and go overboard “beautificating” each other at Sephora. Soon, the only gift card left is for a fast food place called Butter Burger (whose slogan is “Why have a better burger when you can have a Butter Burger?”). Hailey thought all the Butter Burgers closed years ago, but Beta informs her that there is one location left – in Flagstaff, Arizona. Looks like they’re going to have to take a road trip that weekend, since the gift card expires on Sunday. Scott feels bad because he was supposed to celebrate his one-month anniversary with Kristine this weekend. Hailey, “Oh no, what a shame. It’s too bad we have to save the world instead.” That weekend, Scott meets Hailey at the bus station with good news – Kristine is coming with them! Hailey is worried that she’ll be relegated to third wheel status on the trip, but it soon becomes clear that Kristine is the one on the outside. Hailey and Scott pass the time on the bus trip singing their favorite camp songs, playing way too many rounds of “bloody knuckles”, and even pulling pranks on the other passengers (including Kristine). At one of the bus stops, Hailey spots a roadside fun park that has bumper boats, so she and Scott excitedly hop off the bus to battle it out, with a reluctant Kristine tagging along. When Hailey and Scott end up T-boning Kristine’s boat, however, she finally snaps and blows up at Scott. This is the worst anniversary EVER! The three get back on the bus for a very quiet ride the rest of the way to Butter Burger. Feeling bad (and somewhat responsible) for all the tension she caused, Hailey uses her last gift card to buy Kristine some chili cheese fries and apologize. Surprisingly, Kristine apologizes, too. Honestly, she only came along on this trip because she’s jealous of Hailey. Hailey can’t believe it. Kristine is jealous of HER?? Kristine says that while she isn’t exactly jealous of Hailey’s hair, shoes, or general sense of fashion, she’s jealous of how close she is to Scott and how much fun the two seem to have together. Touched that Kristine opened up to her, Hailey decides to help her out. Instead of letting Kristine give Scott the trendy Tiller hat that he would absolutely hate as an anniversary present, Hailey gives her the gift she was saving for Scott’s birthday – a rare, misprinted baseball card of Mike Trout splitting his pants mid-swing. Kristine gives Scott the baseball card and he is thrilled. This is the best present he’s ever received! He then tells Kristine he got her a gift too – two first class tickets for a train ride back home. Kristine is thrilled not to have to take the filthy bus back, and hurries off to find a seat on the train. Before Scott catches up to her, however, he turns to Hailey and thanks her for the baseball card. He knows there’s no way that came from Kristine. Hailey smiles as Scott hurries off after his girlfriend. The bittersweet moment is interrupted, however, when Hailey realizes she’s now taking a 9-hour Greyhound bus ride back home by herself. “Son of a--”
